

WE ARE STILL HERE FOR YOU

Howard, Moore & McDuffie is closely monitoring the COVID-19 situation, and we are continuously checking with our local agencies as well as the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) to help us determine what, if any, action is necessary on our part to support our clients, our community and our staff. We are taking preventative measures based upon the CDC's recommendations to mitigate the spread of the virus. Our office currently remains open, and we are conducting business as usual with a few exceptions.

At this time, we recommend that our clients utilize self-service options via our website at www.hmmcpaga.com and limit visits to our office unless absolutely necessary.

If you are currently sick, experiencing any symptoms, have been exposed to the virus, or have recently traveled outside of the country, we ask that you please use our telephone, video or portal options to avoid the risk of exposure to any of our staff. If you have been exposed or become ill and have recently visited our office or had contact with any of our staff, please notify us immediately.

Our facility surfaces and equipment are continuously being sanitized. Common areas are being continuously cleaned, and our staff are using best practices for washing hands and sanitizing based upon CDC recommendations. We are taking all necessary steps possible to keep our environment germ free.

Our clients are like our family, and we want to keep you safe and informed. We want to reassure you that we remain committed to being available to service your needs and keep you informed of tax law changes as they are released at the federal and state level and how this pandemic impacts you or your business.
